The first column opens the story with a clear sentence that names its subject before it continues further.

Another paragraph starts on the left and keeps the left column reading.

The second column carries the rest. It finishes the argument cleanly.

The second page resumes the story on the left where the first page ended.

The last column closes the document.